came through the Neutral Countries.

Rome, October 6.

ON the 27th of last Month an extraordinary Congregation of the Holy Office was held to finish several criminal Processes, and to receive the Abjuration of the Arch-priest of Valleri, and of other Persons convicted of several Errors conformable to those of the Quietists. On the 3d instant when the Count de Lamberg went Post to Leghorne to confer with the Admirals of the Confederate Fleet, the young Marques Scipione Santa Croce took that opportunity to get out of this City, to escape the Execution of the Sentence given against him for killing the Baron Angelo Gavotti; by which Sentence he is condemn'd to Death, for not appearing to take his Tryal, and all his Estate is confiscated. The Marques Bentivoglio, and the Marques Corsini, who were the Seconds in that Duel, are condemn'd to the like Punishment: But the Immunity of the consecrated Places to which they fled at first, gave them opportunity afterwards to make their Escapes. A certain number of Workmen are employ'd by order of the Pope, to raise up an ancient Column which was found buried in the Ground in the Neighbourhood of the Monte Citorio, and his Holiness designs to have it set up in the great Square of the Palace which Innocent the 12th built with great Magnificence, and gave to the Citizens of Rome; for their several Courts of Justice to sit in it. To day the Pope went to the Church of the Carthusians in the Baths of Diocletian, and said Mass, as he has done annually since his Elevation to the Pontificate; because on the same day, he celebrated his first Mass in that Church, before he entred into the Conclave in which he was chosen.

From the Leiden Gazette, dated Nov. 15.
